Passage 7

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

Many teenagers experience sudden mood 1.changes (change) in their daily life. They may feel happy one minute and sad the next. This is 2.~~the~~ a normal part of teenage growth. According to the biological science, teenagers' mood swings are 3.caused (cause) by the different rates of brain maturation. The part of the brain 4.responsible (responsibility) for emotions develops early; 5.while the part that regulates emotions develops later. As a result, teenagers often feel extreme emotions and have difficulty 6.managing (manage) them. 7.Besides (beside), study pressure, peer pressure and high expectations from parents can also make teenagers feel stressed and moody. To deal with bad feelings, teenagers can try some useful ways. They can take a deep breath and go out for a walk when they feel really bad. Regular exercise is also a good way 8.to relax (relax). 9.~~Writing~~ Writting (write) down feelings in a journal or talking to someone you trust can also help a lot. If bad feelings last for a long time, it's necessary to ask for help 10.~~to~~ from parents or teachers.

Passage 4

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

Emma is a 1. shy (shy) and quiet girl who moved to a new town with her parents last month. She was very nervous 2. about starting her new school. She was afraid that she wouldn't get on 3. with her new classmates and that no one would 4. ~~to hit~~ hit (hit) it off with her. 5. On her first day of school, she sat in the corner of the classroom and didn't dare 6. ~~to talk~~ (talk) to anyone. Her teacher noticed her and encouraged her 7. to take (take) part in class activities. Emma tried her best to join in a group discussion and shared 8. her (she) ideas. Her classmates were very friendly and welcomed her warmly. Day by day, Emma became 9. more outgoing (outgoing) and made many new friends. She found that making new friends was not as difficult as she thought. Now she enjoys her new school life very much. This experience tells us that we should be brave enough (0) to face (face) new challenges and open our hearts to others.

be nervous about

be brave enough to do sth 足够勇敢做某事

Passage 8

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

Dear Tom, I'm sorry to hear that you 1. failed (fail) your math exam last week. I know you have been 2. worked working (work) hard at your math studies, but the result didn't meet your expectations. You must feel very 3. disappointing disappointed (disappoint) and self-doubting. I want to give you some advice to help you 4. cheered (cheer) up. First of all, don't be too hard on yourself. Everyone may fail an exam sometimes, and it doesn't mean you are not good at math. You should 5. analyze (analyze) your mistakes carefully and find out the reasons for your failure. Maybe you didn't master some key knowledge points 6. what or you were too nervous during the exam. Secondly, you can ask your math teacher or classmates 7. for help. They can explain the difficult problems to you and give you some useful learning methods. Thirdly, keep 8. practising (practice). Math requires a lot of practice, and you can improve your grades by 9. doing (do) more exercises. Finally, believe in yourself. You have the ability 10. to do (do) well in math as long as you keep trying. I hope my advice can help you. If you need any help, you can always come to me. Let's work together and make progress. Yours, Li Hua beg sb. not to do 求某人不要做...

her homework. When Lily asked her about it, Lucy begged her 4._____ (not tell) the teacher. Lily was in a dilemma. She didn't want to get her friend into trouble, 5._____ she also knew that it was her duty to report the truth. After thinking 6._____ (careful), she decided to tell the teacher. Lucy was very angry and didn't talk to her any more. Lily felt 7._____ (awful) and didn't know 8._____ to fix their friendship. Later, she had a heart-to-heart talk with Lucy. She explained that she was only doing her job 9._____ hoped Lucy could understand her. Lucy finally forgave her and they became good friends again. This experience taught Lily that friendship needs trust and understanding. We should also learn to stick to 10._____ (we) principles even when facing difficult choices.

don't tell not to tell

困境

but carefully

awfully awfully

how and our ourselves

When I was a little girl, I always had many teenage problems that I didn't know how 1. to solve (solve). I was 2. too shy to communicate with my parents and teachers, and I often felt lonely and helpless. One day, I came across an online advice column 3. called (call) "Dear Sister Xin Zhi". I decided to write a letter to her, 4. telling (tell) her about my troubles. To my surprise, she replied to my letter soon and gave me some useful advice. She told me that I should be brave enough to share my feelings with others and learn to face my problems 5. bravely (brave). She also encouraged me 6. to take (take) part in more school activities to make new friends. I followed her advice and gradually changed. I became 7. more outgoing (outgoing) and confident. Now I can communicate better with my parents and teachers, and I have made many good friends. I am very grateful 8. ~~for~~ to be grateful to sb. Sister Xin Zhi. Her advice has changed my life. I also learn that it's important to ask for help 9. ~~if~~ when 当…的时候 we are in trouble. Many teenagers have similar problems. We should not be afraid to face them and 10. seek (seek) help from others. With the help of others, we can grow up healthily and happily.

Passage 2

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

Tom is a 15-year-old boy who loves 1. skateboarding (skateboard) and baking very much. He spends a lot of time on these hobbies after school, 2. but his parents are not happy about it. They think these hobbies will 3. affect (affect) his studies and ask him to focus more on his homework. Tom feels sad and doesn't know 4. how ~~how~~ what to do. One day, he had a good talk 5. with his parents. He told them that he could manage his time well and his hobbies would not get in the way of his studies. He also promised 6. to finish (finish) his homework on time and get good grades. His parents were moved by his sincerity and 7. agreed (agree) to let him keep his hobbies. Now Tom can balance his studies 8. and hobbies well. He often goes skateboarding with his friends on weekends and bakes delicious snacks for his family. He also proves to his parents that having hobbies can make him 9. more confident (confident) and creative. Many teenagers have similar problems with their parents. We should learn to communicate with them patiently and let them understand 10. our (we) thoughts.

Passage 3

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的词，或填入括号中所给单词的正确形式。

Nowadays, many teenagers are 1.addicted (addict) to social media. They spend 2.too much time on it and often ignore their studies and real-life relationships. Some of them even feel anxious and 3.depressed (depress) when they can't use social media. As teenagers, we should realize that social media is a tool, not our whole life. We should use it properly instead of being 4.controlled (control) by it. First of all, we should set 5.a time limit for using social media. We can spend no more than one hour a day 6.on it. Secondly, we should focus more on our studies and real-life 7.communication (communicate). We can take part in more outdoor activities and spend more time with our family and friends. Thirdly, we should learn 8.to resist (resist) the temptation 诱惑 of social media. We can develop other 9.hobbies (hobby), such as reading, sports and painting, to enrich our spare time. Finally, we should understand that real happiness comes from real-life experiences, not from the virtual world. If we can use social media in a proper way, it can bring us convenience and fun. Otherwise, it will affect our studies and mental health. Let's use social media 10.wisely (wise) and be a better self.

Passage 5

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的词，或填入括号中所给单词的正确形式。

As teenagers, we often face various kinds of stress, such as academic pressure, peer pressure and emotional ups and downs. It's important for us 1. to find (find) proper ways to deal with these negative emotions. Some teenagers like to do sports 2. to relax (relax), 3. and while others prefer to listen to music or read books. I think the best way to deal with stress is 4. talking to talk (talk) to someone we trust. When we talk about our troubles, we can feel 5. relieved (relieve) and get some useful advice. My parents and teachers are always there for me when I am in trouble. They listen to me 6. patiently (patient) and give me support and 7. encouragement (encourage). They also teach me how 8. to face (face) difficulties bravely and never give up. With their help, I have become 9. confidence (confident) more confident and resilient. I believe that every teenager can overcome stress and grow into a better person if we find the right way and keep 10. tried (try). Let's face teenage problems bravely and enjoy our growth journey.

Passage 6 trying

Passage 3

阅读下面短文，在空白处填入一个适当的单词或括号内单词的正确形式。

Lily is 1.__in__ charge of collecting homework in her class. She is a 2._____(responsibility) and careful girl, responsible and all her teachers and classmates trust her. Last month, her best friend Lucy started forgetting 3.~~hands~~(hand) in hands to hand